SEADREAM II

Dear SEADREAM Guest,

It is our sincere pleasure to welcome you aboard SEADREAM II.

As you may be aware this past year there has been a substantial increase in outbreaks of Norovirus in several major US cities and across the United Kingdom and elsewhere. The Norovirus (or Norwalk virus flu) is a very common, highly contagious gastrointestinal ailment easily transmitted via "contaminated hands". It's as simple as coming in contact with a contaminated surface. You can not see the virus and in fact the contaminated surface may look clean. One of the unique characteristics of this virus is that in any environment with people -- airports, planes, buses, restaurants, stores, ships or elsewhere the potential exists to unexpectedly touch a contaminated surface.

Although the Norovirus can't be cured, it can be prevented. The most important weapon against the Norovirus is "hand hygiene" such as vigorous washing with soap and warm water or using an alcohol hand sanitizers. Good hygiene practice is our first and last line of defense, and limiting outbreaks depends largely on the ability of those infected to remain isolated for the duration of the infectious period. We therefore ask you to assist us with the following steps to help protect against a Norovirus outbreak:

- Take extra precautions in continually cleansing your hands many times a day and always prior to any food or drink consumption.
- Each time you re-embark during the voyage from an excursion, sightseeing, or a meal ashore please wash your hands or utilize the chlorinated towels or antibacterial hand sanitizer provided by our staff at the gangway.
- The Center for Disease Control encourages the use of antibacterial sanitizers following hand washing which will also be placed around the yacht for your use and safety.
- If you feel like you are experiencing symptoms of Norovirus, immediately contact the ship's doctor.

Thanks for helping us protect you and all guests and crew.

We wish you an enjoyable journey.
