Zurich Airport Radisson Blu 277 Overpriced and Avoid. Conveniently located in the Zurich Airport. Priced at $430 per night for basic room, horrible view, and smelly hallways, this is a hotel to void. Basic room is clean, but product shorting from towels to toilet paper. Poor ventilation. Slow checkin.

Radisson Blu Zurich Airport

The Zurich Airport Radisson Blue is to be avoided. It's overpriced and what you'd expect for a hotel at one quarter the price (or less).

It's conveniently located at the airport terminal, which is its only redeeming value. Checkin took about 30 minutes. The hallways smelled bad, and the airport view from the room window was awful (roadway and construction containers).

The room was clean and appointed like a $100 a night hotel, which was fine, but not for $430 a night.

The bathroom had no washcloths, one out of two toilet paper rolls, and the shower/tub combo didn't work well. When used as a shower, the drain clogged up quickly, and the shower spray seemed to get the bathroom floor wet, even with the glass half door.

A much better alternative is the Hyatt Place or Hyatt Regency The Circle (not available that day) at less than 1/2 the price, but with a much better quality room.

Avoid the Radisson Blu Zurich Airport whenever possible.
