Maldives: Indian Ocean Paradise

Epic drone footage of the Conrad Maldives during New Years 2019-2020. Views of sunset over the water villa. This is a vloggers paradise. Incredible sunsets, crystal clear water, even sharks swimming beneath your glass floor villa, this resort has it all. Cost of admission is a astronomical $8,000 per night (drinks not included). Of course you can stay at the underwater villa for up to $40,000 per night.

Pro Tips:

Shot on a DJI Mavic Air. Short video edited on iPhone12 Pro. For travel tips visit our website at Cruising Review.

Cruising Review travels the world to capture the best sunsets, resorts, cruises, and experiences. CR provides factual reviews. If a guest experience goes wrong, we try to work with the staff to remedy the poor experience. We do this to encourage systematic change (we don't do it for free stays, points, or any reimbursement). We are very transparent in our reviews, and hope you appreciate that, since your time and money are valuable assets. Most travelers have limited time, and want to spend it enjoying the experience, not dealing with experience or infrastructure issues.

ASPEN Colorado: Maroon Bells (June 2020)

Hailed as the most photographed mountains in North America, Maroon Bells, which is just outside of Aspen, is one of the prettiest locations in the United States. The area opened up June 8th, and do you need reservations to go there by vehicle. If you're biking up you do not need reservations. I rented a E-bike and treked the almost 10 miles without too much effort. The ride is just beautiful. As with last year, there was evidence of avalanche damage to many groves of Aspen. While hiking up the trail I saw two moose. Just a beautiful summer solstice weekend.
